The Chris Farley Show A
There's "The Chris Farley Show," the inspiration for the title, and for good reason. It's unanimously agreed that there was no "character" to that skit and that the writers were writing Chris' true personality, a guy who revered people in show business and wanted to just hear them talk about anything.

The Chris Farley Show: A Biography in Three Acts by Tom ...
The Chris Farley Show was a sketch from the American comedy TV series Saturday Night Live, which involved comic actor Chris Farley, as a parody of himself, interviewing various celebrities. Rather than ask his guest questions that had any popular significance, or allow his guest to plug a current project, he would invariably act nervously, and simply describe scenes from a film in which the guest actor appeared. After asking the performer whether he remembered this particular event, Farley would
