The eighth and final volume of The Cambridge History of Africa covers the period 1940–75. It begins with a discussion of the role of the Second World War in the political decolonisation of Africa. Its terminal date of 1975 coincides with the retreat of Portugal, the last European colonial power in Africa, from its possessions and their accession to independence.

The collection was first established in 1964, with a donation from the late filmmaker and philanthropist, Margaret Mallory. Her generous gift of over three hundred objects, which were largely acquired in Central Africa around the early twentieth century, not only laid the foundation for the donations that followed, but also established a basis for instructional use.
