A distributed database is a database in which all the storage devices are not connected to a common processor. In contrast, a parallel database is a database that helps to improve the performance by parallelizing various operations such as data loading, building indexes, and evaluating queries.

What is the Difference Between Distributed and Parallel ...

In parallel computing multiple processors perform multiple tasks assigned to them simultaneously. Memory in parallel systems can either be shared or distributed. Parallel computing provides concurrency and saves time and money.

Difference between Parallel Computing and Distributed ...

Distributed computing is a field of computer science that studies distributed systems. A distributed system is a system whose components are located on different networked computers, which communicate and coordinate their actions by passing messages to one another. The components interact with one another in order to achieve a common goal. Three significant characteristics of distributed systems are: concurrency of components, lack of a global clock, and independent failure of components. Examp

Distributed computing - Wikipedia

DEFINITION A system is said to be a Parallel System in which multiple processors have direct access to shared memory which forms a common address space. Usually tightly-coupled systems are referred to as Parallel Systems. In these systems, there is a single system wide primary memory (address space) that is shared by all the processors.
