Principles of Marketing Engineering. As a profession, marketing is evolving, no longer based almost exclusively on conceptual content. That conceptual content will always have an important role to play in marketing, but the 21st century requires more analysis and rigor in marketing decision making. Much of marketing resembles design engineering - putting together concepts, data, analyses, and simulations to learn about the marketplace and to design effective marketing plans.

While many view traditional marketing as art and some view it as science, the new marketing increasingly looks like engineering (that is, combining art and science to solve specific problems). Marketing Engineering is the systematic approach to harness data and knowledge to drive effective marketing decision making and implementation through a technology-enabled and model-supported decision process.

Principles of Marketing Engineering 2nd Edition - Lilien ...

The term marketing engineering can be traced back to Lilien et al. in "The Age of Marketing Engineering" published in 1998; in this article the authors define marketing engineering as the use of computer decision models for making marketing decisions. Marketing managers typically use "conceptual marketing", that is they develop a mental model of the decision situation based on past experience, intuition and reasoning.
