this defense of Calvinism (the doctrines of grace) was adapted from a larger work of Spurgeon. It is an okay defense, but there are many others out there that are much better and more readable: Pink, Calvin, MacArthur, Sproul, et al. there was one section I found surprising: he said that he believes there will be far more in heaven than in hell. I do not agree.

a defense of calvinism

This is the message of Calvinism; and because it is, our defence of Calvinism is a bold, uncompromisingly, unashamed defence. We say of Calvinism what B. B. Warfield once said of it: “the future of Christianity—as its past has done—lies in its hands.” We repudiate the false accusations made against Calvinism, and the caricatures made of it. Men say of Calvinism that it is destructive of good works and of the law of God, that it produces careless Christians.

However, under the Calvinist view, God would desire to judge some sinful people, and he does not desire all people to be saved. 2. God allows humans to resist his will. Calvinism places God’s will as the primary attribute of God in their system—anything that speaks against this is thought to take away from God’s glory and nature.
