Section 33 of the Limitation Act 1980, as it is now, was first introduced in 1975. There followed a long line of authorities dealing with the exercise of the court's discretion under this provision which Lady Justice Smith considered in Cain and McKay. Section 33 provides the Court with a wide discretion to disapply the primary limitation period of three years if it is equitable to do so and lists a number of circumstances to which the court is to have regard when reaching its decision.
