Governance And Public Policy In

Public policy generally consists of the set of actions—plans, laws, and behaviours—adopted by a government. Concern with the new governance draws attention to the extent to which these actions are often performed now by agents of the state rather than directly by the state. A vast number of studies offer detailed accounts of the impact of the new public management and the rise of the new governance within particular policy sectors, such as health care, social welfare, policing, and ...
